A medical algorithm is any computation, formula, statistical survey, nomogram, or look-up table, useful in healthcare. Medical algorithms include decision tree approaches to healthcare treatment (e.g., if symptoms A, B, and C are evident, then use treatment X) and also less clear-cut tools aimed at reducing or defining uncertainty. A medical prescription is also a type of medical algorithm.

Stardog extends SPARQL for path queries which can be used to find paths between two nodes in a graph. Path queries are similar to SPARQL property paths that recursively traverse a graph and find two nodes connected via a complex path of edges. But SPARQL property paths only return the start and end nodes of a path.

Problem: I recently received this problem via email: I have been looking for the reliabilities for each of my subscales, 2 scales have been fine but the other two have come out with low alpha values and several items have negative correlations with each other in the inter-item correlation matrix.

What causes negative item total correlations and...

HOWTO - Define an SPF Record. This page defines configuration of a Sender Policy Framework (SPF) record for a domain and its mail servers. DKIM/ADSP is an alternative or complimentary approach involving the signing of mail to authenticate the sender domain. DKIM is significantly more complex than SPF but provides significantly more functionality.

In artificial intelligence, an expert system is a computer system that emulates the decision-making ability of a human expert. Expert systems are designed to solve complex problems by reasoning through bodies of knowledge, represented mainly as if-then rules rather than through conventional procedural code. The first expert systems were created in the 1970s and then proliferated in the 1980s.
