Feelings And Moods

When you have feelings. In English we say that we are hungry, but in Spanish you say that you have hunger. There are a few feelings like this: These use the verb tener (to have) together with a noun, rather than an adjective like we used above. And because we're dealing with nouns here, you don't need to change the end to agree with the gender of the person you're talking about.

Feelings and moods in Spanish: Vocabulary and phrases

Feeling is the nominalization of the verb to feel. The word was first used in the English language to describe the physical sensation of touch through either experience or perception. The word is also used to describe experiences other than the physical sensation of touch, such as "a feeling of warmth" and of sentience in general. In Latin, sentire meant to feel, hear or smell.
