The Common Agricultural Policy Continuity

The Common Agricultural Policy (CAP) is the agricultural policy of the European Union. It implements a system of agricultural subsidies and other programmes. It was introduced in 1950 and has undergone several changes since then to reduce the cost (from 73% of the EU budget in 1985 to 37% in 2017) and to also consider rural development in its aims. It has been criticised on the grounds of its ...

Human-Induced Succession. Human activities can have a powerful effect on ecosystems and the way they change. This is known as human-induced succession, which can lead to changes that are often unexpected and sometimes seriously detrimental to the benefits that people derive from ecosystems. Pollution of the lagoons that surround small South Pacific islands provides a striking example.
