Why Is There A Worm In Tequila - delish.com

Tequila (Spanish pronunciation: ()) is a regional distilled beverage and type of alcoholic drink made from the blue agave plant, primarily in the area surrounding the city of Tequila, 65 km (40 mi) northwest of Guadalajara, and in the Jalisco Highlands (Los Altos de Jalisco) of the central western Mexican state of Jalisco. Aside from differences in region of origin, tequila is a type of mezcal ...

Tequila - Wikipedia

A mezcal worm is an insect larva found in some types of mezcal produced in Oaxaca, Mexico. The larva is usually either a gusano rojo ("red worm") or a chinicuil ("maguey worm"), the caterpillar of the Comadia redtenbacheri moth. The red worm is typically considered tastier. Contrary to popular belief, a true Tequila does not contain a worm.

Mezcal worm - Wikipedia

It's a common urban legend that tequila comes with a worm in the bottle. This "worm" is actually the larva of a moth referred to as a gusano. In the 1940s, a distiller named Jacobo Lozano Páez found that leaving the worms in his mezcal changed the flavor. People began to believe that finding one of these "tequila worms" was a sign of luck.
